The new South Australian Food Centre is there for you, it's your first stop to grow and develop your business.

It provides a very real and tangible hub of expertise for your business to tap into and combines leading government and industry food resources, all in the one place.

Supporting and facilitating your business, you can connect to the right people to help with your business planning, products, packaging, processing, safety, marketing, distribution and a whole lot more.

The SA Food Centre is home to a range of experienced food industry professionals including business development facilitators, food technologists and specialists as well as providing access to modern processing facilities.

The South Australian Food Centre is a partnership between Primary Industries and Resources SA (PIRSA), South Australian Research and Development Institute (SARDI), Department of Trade and Economic Development (DTE) and TAFE SA and has been established under the South Australian Food Plan 2007-2010 to achieve the target of 8% growth in finished foods per year.
